List of countries and their traditional food and celebrations

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Country</th>
<th>Traditional Diet</th>
<th>Traditional Serving/Eating Practices</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>China</td>
<td>- Low in sugar, fat and protein and high in carbohydrates</td>
<td>- Dishes are served at the same time and individuals serve themselves into bowls</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Meal consists of many different dishes and involves a variety of textures and</td>
<td>- Ingredients are chopped up finely so that there is no need for cutting at the table</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>flavours within the same meal</td>
<td>- Meals are usually eaten with chopsticks and a porcelain spoon for soup</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Rice is almost always the basis of a meal</td>
<td>- Deep bowls are commonly used to eat from</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Usually have 3 meals a day, do not tend to snack</td>
<td>- Soy sauce us commonly placed on the table to be used as a condiment</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Food are commonly steamed, boiled or stir-fried</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Chinese food is fairly plain in comparison to some other Asian foods which</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>are spicier</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Vegetables are traditionally cooked to be tender but crisp</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Burma</td>
<td>- Influenced by Indian, Chinese, English and indigenous Burmese cuisines</td>
<td>- Burmese eat at the table and may eat their meal with:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Rice is the staple eaten at most meals</td>
<td>- their fingers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Curries are mild</td>
<td>- Spoon only</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Fish is a common feature.</td>
<td>- Cutlery – knife and fork</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Vegetables are usually crisp and stir-fried rather than boiled</td>
<td>- Usually eat from small bowls</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Green vegetables are very popular and are traditionally served with most</td>
<td>- Dishes are placed on the table and individuals serves themselves into bowls</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>meals</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Greece</td>
<td>- Fish is eaten in large quantities and cooked in a variety of ways</td>
<td>- Traditional European setting with knives, forks and spoons</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Lamb is a favourite meat but poultry, goat, beef and pork are also enjoyed</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Vegetables are usually cooked in oil and usually have added</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

Greece
- Salad is served at almost every meal
- Greek cuisine relies on the use of fresh seasonal ingredients
- Olives and olive oil are essential ingredients in the Greek diet
- Dried fruit and nuts feature highly in the Greek diet
- White crusty bread is served at most meals without butter or margarine

India
- A wide variety of food is eaten and regional variation that is present.
  - Major differences exist between Northern and Southern India
  - Northern India staple – Wheat, eaten as chapattis
  - Southern India staple – rice
  - Northern India curry is usually dry as they can be eaten with chapattis
  - Southern India curry is usually wet so that the rice can soak up the juices
  - Northern India meat – mutton, chicken, pork. No beef
  - Southern India meat – Mainly vegetarian
  - Northern India fish – river fish
  - Southern India fish – ocean fish occasionally
- At least one curry is preferred per day
- A wide variety of fruits and vegetables are eaten throughout India
- Regardless of religion persuasion most Indians will not eat meat every day if at all
- Most Indian meals are served with an array of different dishes including pappadums, pickles, relishes and raitas

- All the food is placed on the table at the same time. Each person eats what they wish depending on the individual taste
- Northern Indians may use spoons to eat the meal
- Southern Indians may use their hands to eat their meal
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

Indonesia, Malaysia and Singapore

- Fruit is eaten often
- Due to the similar climate, many of the vegetables eaten in Australia are also eaten in Indonesia, Malaysia and Singapore
- Indian Malaysians and Indian Singaporeans enjoy spicy foods including curries and satay dishes
- Chinese Malaysians and Singaporeans eat less spicy, quite plain food
- Eating habits will vary according to religious beliefs. E.g.
  - Muslims do not eat pork
  - Hindus will not eat beef
  - Buddhists can be strict vegetarians
- The staple of every meal is rice
- Soup is eaten at least once a day
- In general pork is the meat eaten most frequently, followed by chicken (Muslim Malaysians however do not eat pork)
- Fish and prawns are commonly eaten
- All vegetables are eaten. Green vegetables are preferred and to other vegetables and are eaten at almost every meal

Italy

- In Italy there are over 20 different regions each with a unique cuisine.
  - Italians like to eat pork, veal, chicken and fish. Cold cuts of meat such as salami, ham and mortadella are eaten regularly. The majority of these cold cuts are high in fat and/or salt and their consumption should be minimised.
  - Vegetables, including legumes are usually boiled and then flavoured with spices.
  - Salad is a part of almost every midday and evening meal, even when hot

Notes

- All dishes are placed on the table at the same time. Individuals serve themselves
- Dishes are usually served and eaten from bowls rather than plates
- Utensils will vary. Some people will use chopsticks, while others will prefer to use their fingers (right hand only). Those who use this method of eating are very gracious and neat.
- Use traditional Europeans setting with knives, forks and spoons
- The meal usually begins with a soup or antipasto (a selection of meats, cheeses and vegetables)
- Olive oil and vinegar are placed on the table to be used as a dressing for salad
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Region</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Middle East  | Represents the general geographical region south east of Europe. Countries considered to be in this region include: Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Oman, Palestine, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Turkey and Yemen. Every country has its own individual culture and eating habits however these countries have been grouped together as they follow similar patterns.
- Cooking and eating are very social affairs and often take place in the company of others
- Many Middle Eastern food habits especially food taboos, will be based on religious beliefs – see sections on Jewish and Islamic Eating habits.
- Wheat and rice are the staples – bread, rice or both are consumed at most meals.
- There are many types of bread, the most common bread is flat and sometimes used to pick up meat or vegetables and to dip into a sauce or gravy
- Meals are based on chick peas, beans. Lentils, rice, cracked wheat, barley and toher cereals.
- Meat is eaten regularly and is usually spiced or marinated. Grilling, frying and stewing are common ways of cooking meat
- Lamb is very popular, although fish, beef and chicken are also eaten.
- Many Middle Eastern people will eat with their hands, using bread to act as a spoon, however some will prefer to use utensils
- Food is usually placed in the middle of the table on serving platters or bowls and people help themselves
- Iraqis are offended if the left hand is used while eating, as it is considered unclean. |

| Vegetables   | Pasta is common
- White crusty bread it served without butter or margarine at every meal
- Fruit is usually served at the end of each meal |

---

NAQ NUTRITION (formerly trading as Nutrition Australia Qld) | web www.naqld.org
6/100 Campbell St, Bowen Hills Qld 4006 | ph 07 3257 4393 fax 07 3257 4616 email foodfoundations@naqld.org

© Copyright 2013, The Australian Nutrition Foundation (Qld Div.) Inc t/a NAQ Nutrition. All rights reserved.

FS45, Traditional Food and Eating Practices
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

- Vegetables are eaten with most meals and are an integral part of the diet. They may be eaten raw, pickled, as salads, stuffed as a main dish, added to meat in a stew, sautéed, steamed or deep fried.
- Fresh fruit is generally preferred, although stewed, stuffed and dried fruit are also enjoyed.
- Yoghurt is an essential part of the Middle Eastern diet and used in both hot and cold dishes.
- Soups are popular and are often eaten as a meal in themselves, accompanied by bread.
- For most Middle Eastern people, the main dish of the day is a rich vegetables stew which contains only a little meat.
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

China - special/religious occasions

Dates for many Chinese festivals are based on the lunar calendar. Consequently, the date will vary every year. Check with your local Chinese community for exact dates.

- Chinese new year – January (3 day festival)
- Mid Autumn Festival – May/June
- Dragon Boat Festival
- Birthdays

Burma - special/religious occasions

- Ya Gui Me Bon Pwe – February
  - Burmese version of ‘Let’s have a BBQ’ except they celebrate with a large bonfire and a long wok is used to cook.
- Thin Junge (Water Festival) – April
- Da Ma Set Kya – July
- Beginning of the Buddhist lent. Some people may fast at this time
- Tha Din Kyut (Festival of Light) – October
- Good Friday
- Christmas
- Birthdays and Anniversaries

Greece – Special/religious occasions

- Greek eating habits are largely influenced by religion. Most Greeks follow the Greek Orthodox religion and their Easter and Christmas celebrations fall on different dates to those from Christian religions.
- Holy Thursday – Easter bread is usually baked
- Good Friday – only vegetables and legumes without oil are eaten
- Easter
- Lent
- 15 August (St Mary’s Day called the Assumption)
- 14 September (Day of the Cross)
- Christmas
- Names Days
- New Year
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

India – special/religious occasions

- The Indian year is based on the lunar calendar and so dates for special events will vary every year. Contact your local Indian society to find out exact dates.
- The majority of Indians practise Hinduism and this is followed in descending order by Islam, Christianity, Sikhism, Jainism and Buddhism. Different religious groups have different food restrictions and celebrate different religious occasions. Take to the families attending your OSHC to determine their special/religious occasions celebrated.

Indonesia, Malaysia and Singapore – special/religious occasions

- Good Friday
- Easter Sunday
- Chinese New Year
- Mid Autumn Festival
- Winter Solstice Festival
- Muslim – see Islam section

Italy – special/religious occasions

The majority of Italians are Roman Catholic; therefore two of the most important events of the year are Christmas and Easter

- Christmas Eve
- Christmas Day
- Good Friday
- Ash Wednesday
- Easter
Vegetarian:

Vegetarian is a broad term that means a diet free from meat, fish and poultry. There are many reasons why a family may choose to be vegetarian such as personal health, religion and animal rights, so it is always important that services are respectful of these.

The three main types of vegetarians are listed below with the food groups they do and do not eat.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Food Group</th>
<th>Breads &amp; Cereals</th>
<th>Vegetables</th>
<th>Fruit</th>
<th>Dairy/alternatives</th>
<th>Meat/alternatives</th>
<th>Other</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Lacto-ovo vegetarians:</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>Eggs permitted</td>
<td>Nuts and seeds permitted</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>avoid meat and seafood,</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>No meat No seafood</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>but consume dairy, eggs</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and plant food.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lacto vegetarians:</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>Nuts and seeds permitted</td>
<td>No eggs No meat No seafood</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Avoid meat, seafood and</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>eggs but consume dairy</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and plant food.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

Islamic Religion:

Islam is a religion which is practiced in almost all countries; a person who follows this religion is called a Muslim. Muslims eat a Halal diet, which means they only eat food which is permitted in Islam. Food which is not permitted is called Haram. Islam places responsibility on the individual to practice their religion, as such there are personal and cultural variations – so always discuss with families first so you know what food their children can and can’t eat.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Breads &amp; Cereals</th>
<th>Vegetables</th>
<th>Fruit</th>
<th>Dairy/alternatives</th>
<th>Meat/alternatives</th>
<th>Other</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Permitted – Halal Food</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>All permitted</td>
<td>Chicken, beef and lamb slaughtered according to Islamic dietary</td>
<td>Spices, pickles, chutney, Jam, honey and...</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Vegans:

Vegans consume plant food only.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Soy permitted</th>
<th>Nuts and seeds permitted</th>
<th>No dairy</th>
<th>No eggs</th>
<th>No meat</th>
<th>No seafood</th>
<th>No products containing traces of dairy, eggs, meat, seafood</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>No dairy</td>
<td>No eggs</td>
<td>No meat</td>
<td>No seafood</td>
<td>No products containing traces of dairy, eggs, meat, seafood</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Food Group

- Breads & Cereals: All permitted
- Vegetables: All permitted
- Fruit: All permitted
- Dairy/alternatives: All permitted
- Meat/alternatives: Chicken, beef and lamb slaughtered according to Islamic dietary
- Other: Spices, pickles, chutney, Jam, honey and...
Traditional Food and Eating Practices

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Preparation</th>
<th>Preparation</th>
<th>Preparation</th>
<th>Approved Gelatine</th>
<th>Law</th>
<th>Sugar</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>All seafood</td>
<td>Eggs</td>
<td>Dried beans, lentils and nuts</td>
<td>Ice-cream only if made with halal-approved gelatine and without animal fat</td>
<td>Butter, margarine, vegetable oils</td>
<td>Cordial, fruit juice, mineral and soda water</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Not allowed – Haram Food</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>advertisements</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Not allowed – Haram Food

- Ice-cream only if made with halal-approved gelatine and without animal fat
- Butter, margarine, vegetable oils
- Cordial, fruit juice, mineral and soda water